Rwanda:

Rebels Recruiting Among Refugees in Burundi

The Rwandan Patriotic Front continues to recruit combatants from the roughly 66,000 Rwandan Tutsi refugees in camps in northern Burundi, according to press reports, to bolster its effort to dislodge government forces from the capital. International relief workers say the RPF also is enlisting Burundi Tutsis with the apparent tacit approval of Burundi's Tutsi-dominated military.

— The recruitment effort suggests the group is not likely to agree to a cease-fire before it captures Gütarama or Kigali;

— UN relief officials have told the press that they expect at least 150,000 more refugees, both Tutsis and Hutus, to enter Burundi from Rwanda as fighting intensifies in the south.
